THE HOODOO

earrings from Jim, and some candy, and a barrette from the other girls, and Jim took me to see 'Lost Tho' Won'. My, it was grand! which information hardened Mame's heart past all relenting.

That afternoon she watched wearily till she was just about discouraged when--what was that? A crowd around the wall counter, loud voices, Bessie in tears! Mame waited in a fervor of impatience to get the news. "Now ain't that awful!" whispered the girl next to her. "That woman's no lady. She says Bessie gave her $3 too little change, and the poor thing's got to have it took out of her salary. We working girls sure do get it in the neck."

Mame's heart gave a thrill of triumph. Now would she get a lavender what? Perhaps she would even have to wear shoes like her own. That night she couldn't rest comfortably. She kept wondering what would happen next to Bessie. It made her nervous. Supposing--but at the memory of Jim's birthday gift she shut her lips in a straight line, and went to sleep.

The Girl and Specialization.

Dr. G. Stanley Hall, comparing the power of concentration and love of study in boys and girls, says few girls care to specialize in study, whereas it comes natural to a boy.

"The two have a different view of things," continues Doctor Hall. "The boy wants to know all about one thing. Girls don't care to put on blinders and get down to one thing--that it, not many of them."

We are not quite certain whether Dr. Hall means this as complimentary to the fair sex or not. We know not whether this indicates the breadth of the feminine mind or the lack of it. But no matter if his statement is true, Doctor Hall might search the history of the centuries for his answer. The ages gave woman one thing to do, the one thing wherein was included all the things of a natural life. As house-keeper she was expected to be executive, accountant, cook, laundress and waitress; as mother she was expected to be disciplinarian, physician, nurse, counselor and seamstress; as wife, helpmeet and the inspiration--Oh, much abused phrase which too often has meant prop.

Scharwenka and the Butter Man.

Xaver Scharwenka loves to remember the trip when he and H. H. Myer, a butter merchant of Philadelphia, crossed the ocean on the same steamer, says a correspondent of the Musical Courier.

There were few passengers on board and Scharwenka was glad of the quiet, so that he could compose. Often he would sit down at a table by himself in the smoking room and busy himself for six or seven hours at a stretch with pen and manuscript paper.

The butter dealer watched Scharwenka's doings with great interest, and one day tried to coax the musician to take a walk on deck. Scharwenka declined courteously, offering the excuse that he had a great deal more music to write.

"But, my dear man," said the man of butter, "what are you doing that for? Economy is all right, but one must not go to extremes. Why don't you buy the pieces instead of copying them off this way? Music is so cheap nowadays."

This Waiter Was Wise.

One of the last times that Bishop Burgess of Long Island dined out was at the Press club, where the waiters are all negroes. The head waiter bowed Bishop Burgess and his host profusely to their places. "This way, admiral," said he. "Tek this table. You get a better view of the harbor head, admiral."

"I am not an admiral," said Bishop Burgess, smiling.

"My mistake, suh," said the head waiter. "Ah mout or known all the time I was er talkin' to a military man. You like dis table, colonel?"

"I am not a colonel," said Bishop Burgess, smiling more broadly. "I am a bishop."

"To be shuah, suh," said the head waiter. "To-o be shuah! Ve'y sorry for mah mistake, suh. I got dem titles of admiral and colonel wrong. Ah knowed soon as Ah saw you dat you was one of de face cards of you profession, suh."

Does the Front of Your Coat Keep Looking Like This?

YOU know the unsightly break in the front of most coats. It often appears after a few days' wear, giving the coat a tired, dejected appearance and spoiling its shape. You never can press it back.

You run absolutely no risk of a broken coat front when you get your Clothcraft Suit. The Clothcraft coat front is trussed like a bridge. The cloth is built in--not pressed in. Your Clothcraft coat front will be unbroken as long as you wear it.

These are the famous pure all-wool clothes--absolutely guaranteed--the only guaranteed all-wool clothes in the country, selling at $10 to $25.

This announcement is for men who appreciate such values, at these prices. Does this include you?
